Dear POWERPUFF GIRLS:

"Mayor, May I" of POWERPUFF GIRLS #8 was very enlightening. The mayor was at a total loss without Ms. Bellum's help in the decision-making process. Townsville would have been destroyed if the Powerpuff Girls had not been able to convince Ms. Bellum to return from vacation. Five hours is an eternity when danger seeks to wreak havoc on Townsville. Thank goodness Ms. Bellum's vacation did not turn out to be any longer than those few hours. Nothing would be left of Townsville if she had been gone for a few weeks!

I was expecting the radiation creature in the first story in POWERPUFF GIRLS #9 to be 200 feet tall. I never thought the creature attacking Townsville would be only half a foot tall. Townsville insurance rates must be very high. I'm sure the Mayor has a hard time getting reasonable insurance rates for Townsville properties! Ms. Bellum must spend all her free time filing insurance claims. The Powerpuff Girls had lots of trouble stopping the monster's rampage. Blossom, Bubbles and Buttercup could not stop the radiation monster. They got lots of injuries for the Professor to mend. I thought it was hilarious the way the creature was finally defeated. That semi-truck must be made of really, really tough metal.

I also had fun reading "Blowing Bubbles" in the POWERPUFF GIRLS. I was glad the Mayor was able to poke Bubbles with his cane. She was growing way too fast and getting very sticky. She had a really bad reaction to BLOWACIOUS BUBBLE GUM. Townsville will have the insurance agents shaking their heads again. The Girls will probably end up doing cleaning before they can have supper. This would save Ms. Bellum lots of paperwork. I enjoyed all of the stories and look forward to the next issues.

Hi:

I'm writing just to say Ricardo Garcia Fuentes is an absolute gem! I love his pencils and his storytelling skills. Please make use of his work as much as possible. And if you know whether he's selling his original art on the 'net, will you please let me know? I'd like to have original art by Moy, Stephanie Gladden or Mike Stern too. Thank you.

We love Fuelle's and Moy's art too, and you can be sure to see much more art from them both.
